Have you ever tasted clean water?

Water for All

We bet you have.
Every day.

Join Water for All
and help make clean water accessible to everyone.

If everyone in the world had clean drinking water, the lives of more than 25 children could be saved every hour.

Access to clean drinking water not only saves lives, it opens doors and gives people the freedom to make choices for themselves.

Women and children don't have to make the long and often dangerous trek to fetch water. Instead, children can go to school and women can work.

By having a local water supply people can grow crops near their homes, produce food for their families, and even sell any surplus.

Help us make this a global reality.

Water for All is an initiative both founded and run by Atlas Copco employees. Since 1984 it has provided clean drinking water to around 2 million people.

Voluntary donations, boosted by Atlas Copco, fund water-related projects all over the world. These projects transform communities, save lives, and create real, long-lasting change.
