Water changes lives

Access to clean drinking water not only saves lives. It also gives people more freedom to change social structures and ultimately their own lives. Women and children don't have to make the long and often dangerous walk to fetch water. Instead the children can spend these hours in school and women can work. A local water supply also allows people to grow crops near their homes, produce food for their families, and even sell any surplus.

Thank you for making this a global reality!

Water changes lives. Through the dedicated and passionate work of volunteering employees at Atlas Copco and Epiroc, Water for All funds projects which empower people through access to clean drinking water, sanitation and hygiene. Since 1984 we have reached millions of people worldwide.
